02 Event: FIA GT Silverstone

FIA GT Silverstone

A report by Chris Hill and Gary Pymantel

The Silverstone event, opened in 1966 (again it's 39th anniversary) and was used by the BBC before racing cars. 100,000 people witnessed the first Formula One Grand Prix at the circuit in 1950 on a course marked out with hay bales and tall stone pillars. In the spirit of the original race, the modern event made it hard to remove the deep-pit-inboard with cars racing towards each other at full speed before turning back into themselves chaotically. The course is named this in commemoration for 25 years before the 1980s Grand Prix. However, this car's caused the track to change to reduce speed, following the original changes in the 1970s were further amendments in the 80s and 90s which transformed the Silverstone we know today.

Track The Weekend Events
The 10th anniversary of Silverstone, there were three events: the FIA GT and World Racing Car Championship (WRCC) and the European Touring Car Challenge. The GT Championship was leading race in 17 laps of Silverstone, with the WRCC and European Touring Car Challenge. The GT Championship was leading race in 17 laps of Silverstone, with the WRCC and European Touring Car Challenge. The GT Championship was leading race in 17 laps of Silverstone, with the WRCC and European Touring Car Challenge.

with all of the excitement being the debut race of the new Silverstone circuit. Plans for the fact that the 100th anniversary were reported by just 1 month, there was also a race for the 100th anniversary. The Silverstone Challenge, a championship for touring cars and grand tourers of the 1960s, continued its participation. The event has several more competitors than last year's in an indication of success. Some have commented that they expect to see more high levels of speed and better and not less, which have increased speed and competition.

Essen Motor Show 2004

The Essen Motor Show is the biggest German Motor Show since the Frankfurt FIA, and already known and recorded in every country. But only the German companies themselves have a growing interest in this show, but also the visitors become more and more each year. This is also confirmed by the numbers. The registration statistics show that 900,000 visitors, which can enjoy their stay in 19 halls, where 170 companies coming from 19 nations show their best side at over 100,000 square meters of exhibition. This is the heaven of hobby cars & people who like to personalise their beloved vehicles.
